THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

2023 GRADUATION CELEBRATION

MAY 18, 2023 | 5:00 P.M. | CHARLES E. SMITH CENTER

Esther Krofah, MPP

*Esther Krofah, MPP,
Health Policy Leader*

Esther Krofah is the executive vice president of health and is on the leadership teams for FasterCures and the Center for Public Health at the Milken Institute. She has deep experience in the government, nonprofit, and for-profit sectors, where she has led efforts to bring together diverse stakeholder groups to solve critical issues and achieve shared goals that improve the lives of patients.

Most recently, Krofah was the director of public policy leading GlaxoSmithKline's engagement with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and relevant Executive Branch agencies on broad healthcare policy issues, including leadership in improving vaccinations and care for people living with HIV. Prior to GSK, Krofah served as the deputy director of HHS' Office of Health Reform, where she led the development of policy positions for significant regulatory priorities, including the health insurance marketplaces. Prior to HHS, Krofah served as a program director at the National Governors Association (NGA) health-care division, working directly with governors' health policy advisors, state Medicaid directors, and state health commissioners on health insurance, health workforce, and Medicaid coverage issues. Before joining the NGA, Krofah worked in consulting at Deloitte Consulting LLP, where she worked with public sector and commercial clients, including assisting states in developing state-based exchanges. Krofah received a BA from Duke University and a Master of Public Policy from the Harvard University John F. Kennedy School of Government.

To the 2023 Graduates of the Milken Institute School of Public Health

We mark 25 years of success this year at the Milken Institute School of Public Health at the George Washington University, but today, we are celebrating you!

We celebrate for many reasons – the hours you have dedicated to your studies both in and outside the classroom; the resilience and commitment you have shown, which has fortified your ability to complete this chapter of your journey; the innovation, empathy, and achievement you continue to show to all of us and the world around you. Today is a celebration of all of your achievements!

This class brings courage and bold thinking to critical public health issues in our community, our country, and around the globe. Many of you enrolled in this school during the global pandemic's darkest days. You are the heroes who ran toward the crisis with hope, huge hearts and great determination to use the power of public health to make communities healthy and safe.

The impact of your training at GW will be multifaceted and lifelong. We are all students, and our commitment to our current and future alumni is that we will continue to learn, engage and work together for years to come, recognizing that the field of public health is rapidly changing. We must all commit to the exhilarating lifelong pursuit of knowledge.

The field of public health tackles complex problems, from how systemic racism shapes the lives and health of so many Americans to the health challenges created by climate change. These are deeply rooted global problems, but they are not solely public health problems. Your collective determination and passion to advocate, share, communicate, build partnerships, learn, and teach will make our world more aware. Your work will be more effective in fighting these and many more problems we have yet to uncover.

On behalf of the faculty and staff at the Milken Institute School of Public Health at the George Washington University, I congratulate you for choosing to pursue a career in a field where you will make a difference in the health and well-being of people worldwide, especially underserved populations.

Now, more than ever, the world needs your courage and expertise.

As we reflect on the past quarter-century, shaped by purpose and driven by our University's leadership, esteemed faculty, dedicated staff, generous community partners, and brilliant alumni who helped pave the path for you, I am reminded that at the heart of our celebration is you.

The friends and colleagues you have made here will be yours forever. You will always be a member of the GW family, and we care about your continued success and fostering an alumni community that is essential for you.

I am so very proud of each and every one of you, and I know the field of public health will be forever enriched because you are in it.

All my very best,

MILKEN INSTITUTE SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH AT THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

The School of Public Health and Health Services was renamed the Milken Institute School of Public Health in recognition of exceptional and generous contributions from the Milken Institute, the Sumner M. Redstone Charitable Foundation and the Milken Family Foundation. These gifts, totaling $80 million dollars, marked the largest donation ever received by the university.

The Milken Institute School of Public Health has long been a recognized leader and this year is celebrating 25 years of advancing knowledge and training the next generation of leaders in the field of public health. The school has long invested in research and education initiatives through funding and faculty expertise, allowing it to address some of the most important public health issues the world faces today.

Each student participating in the School Celebration Ceremony is presented with a medallion. Undergraduates receive a bronze medallion; Graduate students receive a silver medallion; and Faculty wear a gold medallion.

First established in July 1997, the Milken Institute School of Public Health is the only school of public health in the nation's capital. Today more than 3,000 students from 48 U.S. states and territories and 32 countries pursue undergraduate, online, graduate and doctoral-level degrees in public health.

THE 2023 GRADUATION

OATH

OF THE MILKEN INSTITUTE SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

We, the 2023 graduating class of the George Washington University Milken Institute School of Public Health strive:

To serve the communities we work alongside with compassion, trustworthiness, accountability, and dignity.

To promote credible evidence-based data, interventions, and public health practice by prioritizing scientific literature, community concerns, and professional expertise, in response to health challenges.

To build innovative strategies to bolster community capacity through quality needs assessments and partnerships.

To strive to eliminate racial health disparities through a culturally competent lens, and actively challenge systemically racist structures within our society.

To advocate for equity, inclusion, and diversity in all domains, in the purpose of serving population health.

To emphasize the importance of community health, social justice, and environmental sustainability through focusing on working towards a healthier, more equitable world.

In the presence of our loved ones, peers, faculty, and mentors as witnesses, we pledge to always advocate for the improved health of all individuals we come across. We are bound to the responsibilities and values of our respective disciplines to honor our oath as public health professionals.

The Milken Institute School of Public Health 2023 Graduation Oath was authored by Hunter Anderson, Kofi Asante Asamoah, Sofia Bletnitsky, Kate Doran, Meha Patel, Shubhayan Saha, Eliza Sheehan, and Soumya Sinha.
